Consider team situations, reflect on team behaviour, ask yourself how you would react. Highly enjoyable, non-threatening interaction to get you thinking objectively about your team performance.

Unlike our team activities where team skills are put to the test, here you consider what teamwork actually means.

Work through 30 cards, each presenting an aspect of teamwork. They'll challenge your prejudices, ask for your reactions, consider how teams develop, look at conflict, discuss team roles, gender differences – and a lot more! All stimulate discussion, enable opinions to be shared and help you build an honest view of your own performance in teams back at work. At the end you complete Action Plans detailing simple, common sense changes to make you an even better team player back at work.
